Deacon David A. Klingshirn has endowed what he has dedicated his life to: building and strengthening the future of the Catholic Church. He has been involved at the Athenaeum of Ohio since entering its Lay Pastoral Ministry Program in 1999. In 2004, he was ordained as a permanent deacon of the Archdiocese of Cincinnati. He has always been an avid supporter of the Athenaeum Chorale and Music Program, and he is also a member of both the Bishop Fenwick Society and the St. Gregory Legacy Society.

While studying for the diaconate, Deacon Klingshirn made a major planned gift to endow the Athenaeum's sacred music program; and in 2010, he made an additional bequest gift to provide scholarship funds, in perpetuity, for men studying for the priesthood. Endowing his life commitment will help to ensure the future of seminarian education and the training of seminarians in the importance of sacred music and in the fundamental skills of music for mass.

Last year, when Brighton Center began discussing the importance of planned giving, the Thomases were there, once again, to lead by example by making their own legacy bequest to ensure the vital services which Brighton Center offers.

Marjorie and Roger Santor (posthumously)

Nominated by: CET - Greater Cincinnati Television Educational Foundation

Marjorie and Roger Santor always enjoyed watching educational and enrichment programs on the nation's first licensed public television station, CET (Greater Cincinnati Television Educational Foundation). They have quietly supported its work for more than half of the station's history to date.

"CET was deeply saddened at the passing of this remarkable couple last year," said Dan Virzi, senior manager, membership & donor relations at CET. "CET was profoundly touched to learn that both Marjorie and Roger had made specific bequests to ensure its future - Marjorie through her IRA and Roger through his trust."

The Santors' gifts have helped bolster CET's endowment and ensure that PBS and its trusted programs will be accessible to all. Because of the Santors, CET will continue to impact local school children by increasing their literacy skills with hands-on workshops. In addition, thanks to the Santors' kindness, CET viewers across our region will always enjoy a front-row seat -- from the living room or the classroom -- for locally-produced arts and cultural programming.

Robert Buechner

Nominated by: The Children's Home of Cincinnati

Bob Buechner has been a supporter of the Children's Home, a nonprofit organization that supports the positive development of vulnerable children, for nearly ten years as a sponsor of its annual Rockin' Ribs fundraiser. He has also created a basketball program for the lower school. He and other volunteers work with students several times a month to develop basketball skills, team building, and sportsmanship.

Buechner currently sits on the organization's Planned Giving Committee and has thoughtfully included the Children's Home in his estate planning. His bequest was made to ensure a stable financial future for the Children's Home. Thanks to his leadership and generosity, Buechner has set an inspirational example for others to follow.

John H. White, Jr.

Nominated by: Cincinnati Museum Center – The Cincinnati History Museum and Cincinnati History Library and Archives

One of his many books, Cincinnati Locomotive Builders: 1845-1868, was also published under the auspices of Cincinnati Museum Center.

Ten years ago, he generously created the Christine S. White Restricted Fund, in memory of his mother, to expand the center's historical collections. His very generous bequest from his estate will also establish the Christine S. White Endowment Fund. This fund will permanently endow the position of Reference Manager at the Cincinnati History Library and Archives.

Albert W. Vontz III

Nominated by: Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park

Albert W. Vontz III's generosity is an inspirational example of family legacy. His 17 years of board service to the Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park now match that of his late father, Al Vontz, Jr. The family business, Heidelberg Distributing, is in its thirtieth year as season sponsor. Nearly $3 million have been invested in the Playhouse by father and son, and the Mt. Adams facility is named the Vontz Theater Center to honor the family's unwavering support and passion.

In 2003, continuing in his father's footsteps, Al III informed the Playhouse of his own bequest. "I've been involved in the business world for over 40 years. Had I chosen a different path, I probably would have liked to have been an artist. I really feel it is the responsibility of a corporate businessman and the private sector to invest in the arts, both now and for future generations," he said.

Vontz's bequest means that the Tony award-winning theatre experienced today at the Playhouse will be produced in Cincinnati far into the future. Especially meaningful is that his father, Albert W. Vontz III was also recognized with a Voices of Giving Award in 2002 for such unwavering dedication to the Cincinnati Playhouse.

Lee shows promise for delaying the terrible effects of this disease. I want to do anything I can to support this new program, help make patients' lives more meaningful, and ease the burden on caregivers."

Several years ago, they established The Roma and Sam Kaltman Holocaust Studies for Educators Endowment Fund. This endowment is in memory of Sandy's mother and father who were Holocaust survivors; and will provide ongoing teacher education at the Center for Holocaust and Humanity Education. The couple have also made additional bequest commitments to ensure the long-term sustainability of the Jewish Federation and four other organizations in the local Jewish community.

John and Sandy believe so passionately in the importance of planned giving and permanent endowments that they have made a significant multi-year gift to the Jewish Federation to provide support and training for endowment fundraising, and they also plan to leave gifts to the Freestore Foodbank, the Ohio Innocence Project, and UC Athletics.

Dr. Rieveschl left a significant bequest to the Lloyd which allows the Lloyd to purchase rare books, especially on the topic of pharmaceutical chemistry, Dr. Rieveschl's specialty, and to promote education and interest in chemistry.

Dr. Rieveschl's gift has also enabled the Lloyd to install a permanent exhibition which tells the unique -- and often hidden -- history of Cincinnati and its role in pharmacy, chemistry, and medicine. It also tells the story of the Lloyd brothers and Dr. Rieveschl -- men who shared a passion for pharmacy and chemistry and who were dedicated to giving back to their community.
